Dear Friends,

As we turn our attention to holiday events I’m so thankful for the joys the 2017 Season has brought to Connecticut Landmarks. The summer and fall were filled with educational programs and events for all ages. Our youngest visitors busied themselves with crafts and activities focused on nature and pollinators at the Bellamy-Ferriday House & Garden. Three CTL sites— the Nathan Hale Homestead, Phelps-Hatheway House & Garden and Hempsted Houses— engaged youth in active summer camps designed to bring history’s lessons to a new generation. Our Hartford Youth Employment Program students explored their communities’ history and the dynamic role of museums in our society.

CTL Site Staff came together at the Amos Bull House for intensive workshops and trainings with Braden Paynter from the International Coalition of Sites of to learn and practice the Coalition’s dialogue methods and principles. Staff also visited other CTL properties to learn more about the connections between our houses, and to engage in brainstorming and feedback sessions.

The newly preserved and renovated Hale Barns welcomed many visitors this summer and fall during the weekly Coventry Farmers’ Market, for educational programs and events for all ages. Our youngest visitors busied themselves with crafts and activities focused on nature and pollinators at the Bellamy-Ferriday House & Garden. Three CTL sites— the Nathan Hale Homestead, Phelps-Hatheway House & Garden and Hempsted Houses— engaged youth in active summer camps designed to bring history’s lessons to a new generation. Our Hartford Youth Employment Program students explored their communities’ history and the dynamic role of museums in our society.

As we enjoyed the success of the Hale Barns Renovation Project, we also turned our attention to focus on another important CTL property and project. On September 23rd we held our first event at the Palmer-Warner property in East Haddam welcoming over 85 individuals for Classic Cars & Cocktails. At the event we unveiled concept sketches prepared by Trustee Dusty Mc Mahan and his team at Goman+York, depicting the barns as the site’s upcoming Visitor Welcome, Event & Program Center. Please contact me about this important undertaking! We encourage everyone’s input and participation.

The celebrations continue in November and December with festive holiday events at many CTL properties. We look forward to delighting you with Home for the Holidays at the Phelps-Hatheway House and inviting you to meet New York Times best selling author Martha Hall Kelly at A Polish Christmas with Martha Hall Kelly at the Bellamy-Ferriday House. Please see the event calendar for dates and times.

Wishing you and your loved ones the best of the holiday season!

Executive Director
In Bethlehem, A Polish Christmas with Martha Hall Kelly will transform the Bellamy-Ferriday House & Garden on Sunday, December 10th. This special day celebrates the holidays and the work of social philanthropist Caroline Ferriday, the inspiration for New York Times bestselling author Martha Hall Kelly’s novel Lilac Girls. Experience the Hay, Caroline’s beloved Connecticut home, staged in traditional Polish fashion and adorned with floral arrangements. Learn about Advent and Polish Christmas traditions, including holiday delicacies and customs.

Wrap up your tour by meeting Martha Hall Kelly in Caroline’s kitchen and have her sign your copy of Lilac Girls. Be sure to take home some of the lush greenery available for sale to decorate your own home this holiday season. Then carol your way to Memorial Hall to enjoy Polish desserts and a traditional beverage followed by an author presentation with question and answer session. Martha will discuss Lilac Girls, including her research process, and where she took artistic license. During this special event we will gain insight into Martha’s next book about Caroline and her mother Eliza.

September Celebrations

September brought a whirlwind end to a successful summer with special events that celebrated two CTL sites. On September 16th, friends gathered at the Nathan Hale Homestead in Coventry for Evening at the Homestead. Mums donated by Edmondson’s Farm and Nursery and dahlia-laden floral arrangements by Old Hill Gardens brightened the newly renovated Hale Barns and patio. Attendees enjoyed a progressive feast of passed hor d’oeuvres and stationed delicacies by Cafémantic’s A Moveable Feast and local spirits from Westford Hill Distillers. The Chris Marolda Duo inspired those in attendance to dance, sing and bid! Amongst the living were the creepy and charming cast of Dark Walk. At dusk, a tour of the Homestead and a séance in the English barn hinted at this fall’s haunted events. A raffle drawing punctuated the event and—as the adorable and persistent youth of The Young Friends of Hale reminded us as they sold tickets—the evening’s proceeds benefitted educational programming at the Homestead.

Fall celebrations continued with Classic Cars & Cocktails at the Palmer-Warner House in East Haddam, on September 23rd. Attendees arrived to see classic cars, courtesy of the Nutmeg Region chapter of the Lambda Car Club in the scenic fields behind the house. Guests enjoyed hayrides over the property’s rolling acreage by George Ballek of Ballek’s Garden Center. Cool cocktails and classic rock— in a fashion befitting the property’s legacy— accompanied a beautiful raw bar by Jon Fish and an autumnal spread by La Piastra. In the late afternoon light, families and friends enjoyed lawn games, Chet’s Italian Ice, and the lovely landscape designed by the house’s last residents Howard Metzger and Frederic Palmer. In preparation for the event, Trustee Jim Anderson, his crew, and Trustee Dusty McMahan worked tirelessly to clear the landscape around the house and barn.
Their work revealed garden ornaments and sculptures, stone walls, and other landscape features long obscured from view. Inside, guests got a preview of the house’s extensive object and archival collection which is currently being catalogued and researched by CTL’s Palmer-Warner Project & Collections Manager Erin Malueg.

The original builders and residents of the home, the Warners, were notable blacksmiths and their fine craftsmanship can be seen in the house, as well as throughout Connecticut. The 1738 house sits on 50 acres of land and was home to preservation architect Frederic Palmer, who served as a Trustee and Structures Committee Chairman for the Antiquarian & Landmarks Society—CTL’s original name—from 1944 until his death in 1971. Frederic lived at the property with his life partner Howard Metzger. The house remains virtually untouched since Metzger’s death in 2005. The rich material culture collection includes American Colonial, Victorian and Colonial Revival furniture; porcelain, glass, and silver; paintings and decorative objects; and many personal belongings. The archives encompass Palmer’s architectural papers and drawings; personal photographs; correspondence between Palmer and Metzger during WWII; and Metzger’s correspondence and papers, all of which build a deeper story.

We seek to create a safe place in which to present the site’s story, actively engage visitors in sharing their own stories and foster dialogue around inclusion, individuality, privacy and privilege. CTL is preparing to open the property as Connecticut’s first historic site dedicated to LGBTQ history and is committed to raising $1 million to preserve and renovate the Palmer-Warner Barn to create a Visitor Welcome, Event and Exhibit Center. Stay tuned for updates about events and the site’s progress!
Let’s Go!

Meet Our 2017 Hartford Youth Employment Program Students!

This summer, our Youth Employment Program (YEP) students had the opportunity to explore Connecticut history, the role of museums and museum jobs through workshops, guest speakers and field trips around Connecticut, including the CTL properties. YEP students worked hard to acquire career competencies—the “must haves” employers interviewed by Capital Workforce Partners require to begin a career in any industry—with the students achieving near full competency by the end of the summer through activities such as filling out tax forms, creating resumes and practicing their interview techniques. A visit with our Collections Manager, Erin Malueg, at the Palmer-Warner House provided insight into the process of readying a historic house for the public. The culmination of their internship was a capstone project that began as a group, learning about the International Coalition of Sites of Conscience facilitated dialogue techniques that are being implemented at CTL sites (our YEP visits provided an opportunity for site staff to practice these new skills!). The result was each student designing a model dialogue arc for a chosen CTL site and a deepened understanding of how history is important to our future.

Roberto Gonzalez
Junior at New Britain Public High School
“The point of the YEP program is to educate youth about museums and historic sites and the importance of preserving them. I would encourage others to apply to YEP—it’s a great experience for anyone. I learned about museums, writing and public speaking. Our capstone project involved determining the four types of truths about our chosen site, house themes, how [each site can inspire] someone [to] take stand and move to action.”

Kyoe Paw
Junior at Northwest Catholic High School
“The YEP program educate[s] youth to learn more about Connecticut’s historical landmarks. It’s a good opportunity to learn more about Connecticut historical houses. I want[ed] to understand all of the houses we went to and the preservation of the house[s]. I like[d] the capstone project because it gave me the opportunity to write something about the house I chose... and it reflects a deep understanding of the topic.”

“The point of YEP [is] to give teenagers the chance to explore historical Connecticut. I wanted to see historical homes and places in Connecticut. The Bellamy-Ferriday House was my favorite because it was so beautiful and I loved traveling around in the garden. I wanted to learn about the history of CT. I learned that CT is actually a beautiful place with an interesting backstory. I learned about different historical places in CT. I learned how to do resumes and different strategies. Also I learned how to public speak and will use [this] historical knowledge. I liked our capstone project because it was fun and challenging. I think it was a great way to end our program”

Doh Paw
Junior at Mercy High School
“YEP taught me about historic houses that still stand today in Connecticut and the importance of how life was back then. The story of Dinah really spoke to me because she was a slave at the Hempsted House who ran away, and I think about people who are enslaved now. Learning to write a resume was something that I will use in school and at another job. My favorite field trip was going to the CT State Capitol because I enjoyed seeing inside it and learning about the people who did something for our state.”

Josefina Leon
Senior at the Classic Magnet School
“Through YEP, I wanted to gain the experience of working with new people and learning more of the behind the scenes of museum work. Isham-Terry and Palmer-Warner were my favorite properties, since I was able to see things that the public isn’t able to. The YEP program educate[s] students who are interested about Connecticut Landmarks properties, local history, and give[s] them skills to carry on in life. Filling out tax forms was something I’ve never done before and it definitely will be useful again. I would encourage others to apply to YEP, definitely!”

DeAnte Anderson
Senior at Northwest Catholic High School
“I would encourage others to apply to YEP, especially if they love history or want to learn more about Connecticut’s history, as YEP show[ed] us different landmarks around Connecticut, learning more about Connecticut’s history. From YEP, I learn[ed] about life goals and saw different viewpoints of people and how they lived. I liked how our capstone project made us think about the houses and relate them to real-life situations through Sites of Conscience. Our speakers talked about life goals, college and what to expect after high school. ”
